

CARLTON MELTON

Formed by Andy Duvall and Rich Millman of late-'80s psychedelic bluesmen Zen Guerilla, Northern California's Carlton Melton take the same preoccupation with the trippy end of the rock spectrum and heave on a nice helping of heavy, droning experimentation. Taking a totally DIY route, releasing CD-Rs and starting their own label, Mid To Late Records, the band have just let loose a new album entitled 'Country Ways' that's full of fuzzy, feedback-fuelled psych-rock jams. Having finally made it over to British shores this year, with an appearance on the hallowed Roadburn Festival along the way, Carlton Melton are ready to drift their way into your ears on a wave of loud, loose and freeform guitar squall. No bullshit, just plenty of brilliant, hypnotic riffing. [FP]
